Inaugurate Move For Viaduct Erection On Edenburg Route

Swick Bill To Pave Way For Highway Bridge

Introduces Bill Authorizing Federal Sanction For Edinburg Viaduct

IS NECESSARY AS STREAM IS NAVIGABLE

Would Eliminate Grade
Crossings As Well As Covered Bridge

(By ARTHUR C. WIMER,
Special Washington Correspondent of The New Castle News.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—
Under the provisions of a bill introduced into the House today by Representative J. Howard Swick, the State Highway Department of Pennsylvania would be authorized to construct and maintain a free highway bridge and the approaches thereto on State Route No. 444 across the Mahoning River at Edenburg.
The bridge would be constructed at a point suitable to the interests of navigation and involves no expenditure on the part of the Federal government.
Under the act of congress of March 23, 1906 it is necessary to obtain the approval of the Federal government before constructing a bridge over any navigable water and it is this act that makes necessary the legislation proposed by Congressman Swick today.

Eliminate Grade Crossing
Although the Federal government has jurisdiction only over that section of the bridge that goes over the river, it is intended by the State Highway Department that the bridge be extended so as to do away with the grade crossings at the point where the railroad tracks run parallel to the Mahoning river, as well as with the antiquated covered bridge that now crosses the river.
The Swick bill has been referred to the House committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and will in turn be referred by the committee to the Departments of War and Agriculture for their opinions on the construction of the proposed bridge at Edenburg.
Congressman Swick is hopeful of the bill's passage.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Hard to believe as it is, nevertheless it is true that there are some motorists who have nerve enough to drive their cars with 1930 license plates! Pa New is told this morning that a state highway patrolman spotted two machines with old plates, on the Youngstown road near Parkstown corners, the other day.
That trick isn't healthy on the pocketbook.

You know now Pa New dislikes reminding you of unpleasant things, but he is very interested to know if there are any resolutions made five days ago that will still stand the acid test.

All that was lacking Sunday to make it just like spring were the merry notes of the birds, and still one could almost imagine he heard them. Motorists took advantage of the weather and others took exercise by walking. Nevertheless, while the day was grand, we're not saying
'spring has come.'

The only thing that isn't so good about such a nice day, as one man said, is the weather that comes after.

Pa New twirled the dials on the radio Sunday night and heard Edgar A. Guest, whose poems of simple life have appeared in the News

LINER SINKS DREDGE; ALL OF CREW RESCUED

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Laden with American holiday makers enroute home from Havana, Cuba, the liner city of Montgomery today rammed
the government dredge Raritan off Sandy Hook. The dredge sank almost immediately plunging 55 members of its crew into the sea, where the New York Central mail boat
President picked them up safely.
The city of Montgomery was only slightly damaged and was proceeding on its way to port here.
Fifty-four members of the dredge crew were accounted for definitely and the sole missing man was believed to be adrift in a lifeboat, or rescued with the balance of the Long Pending Legisla-

(By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A little band of Insurgents and Democrats, aroused by a series of recent political developments, today threatened to turn the reconvening senate into a legislative battleground for the remainder of the "lame duck" session of the 71st congress.
This group, powerful because a handful of Senators can filibuster appropriation bills to death and provide a special session of the new congress after March 4, were urging enactment of long pending legislation, protesting against President Hoover's approval of the proposed eastern railroad mergers, calling for reconsideration of the newly confirmed Federal Power Commission, and demanding passage of additional Farm and Unemployment Relief.
Administration leaders opposed these demands as inimical to the Hoover regime, thus providing issues for

Mystery Attends Death Of Two By Chicago Gunmen

Two Alleged Gangsters "Put On Spot"—Police Officials Are Mystified

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Two apparent gang murders, both shrouded in mystery, challenged authorities today as they sought clues that might solve the killings.
Leaving his bride of two months
in a West Side theater last night, Harry Silverstein, 22 year old son of a Democratic politician, stepped into an adjoining alley and was shot to death. Witnesses said Silverstein was shot down by several men in an automobile, which sped away after three shots were fired.
Silverstein's wife said he had left her on the plea that he had some work to complete and would return later.
August Battaglia, known to police as a minor gangster, was shot dead while more than 100 persons stood within fifty feet. Police advanced the theory that Battaglia had been put on the "spot" by underworld associates.

Seeking Relief For Conditions In Youngstown

Citizens Arrange Protest
Meetings To Demand
Quick Relief

POLICE FORCE IS ALMOST NOTHING

Fire Department Force Is Cut In Half On Order Of Mayor

(International News Service)
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 5.— Fearing an influx of thugs and gunmen from all sections of the country, citizens of Youngstown have called several protest meetings for today to seek relief for the city's financial condition which has necessitated reduction of police and fire departments to a 50 per cent basis.
Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan yesterday ordered both departments reduced to a 50 per cent basis with the declaration that "this order is imperative because of the city's financial condition, and will be in effect until the state legislature grants relief."

Mayor's Order
By terms of the mayor's order, this city with a population of almost 200,000 will be guarded by a police force whose maximum personnel numbers seven patrolmen including those assigned to duty on the cruising cars.
Failure of council to pass the 1931 appropriation bill has likewise reduced the fire department to 50 per cent of its normal strength.
The city's 872 employees have to this date given their services to the city without pay.
Council was expected to meet during today in an effort to effect compromise on the appropriation bill which would allow for its passage.

Husband Loses Life In Effort To Avenge His Wife

Apparently Overpowered And Shot To Death With His Own Gun

(International News Service)
NORRISTOWN, Pa., Jan. 5.—An attack upon his wife by a giant Negro drew a landscape gardener to his death at Roslyn, near here, last night. Armed with a shotgun the husband started after the alleged assailant seeking vengeance. Early today his blood spattered body was found, the face torn away by a heavy charge of shot.
The victim was William Ellick, 32.
He was found by a motorist not far from his home. The gun and two empty shells were beside him.
Apparently he had overtaken his wife's assailant and in the ensuing struggle had been disarmed and murdered. The gun had been discharged at close range, the terrific blast shearing off the victim's face.
Police later learned that Mrs. Ellick, 24, had been walking toward her home, when she was pounced upon by a huge Negro who had been waiting in the shadows.
A terrific struggle ensued and the woman beat off her assailant finally only after she had been badly beaten and bruised. She then ran home and hysterically told her husband of what had happened. Enraged at the attack, he armed himself with a shotgun and started in pursuit.

'Dead Letter' Office Will Get 800 Letters From Here

Between 700 and 800 letters—mostly Christmas and New Year's cards—will be the New Castle postoffice's contribution to the vast heap of undeliverable mail now pouring into the Washington "dead letter" bureau from all sections of the country.
Postmaster Edwin Crawford, speaking of the amount, commented that it's a figure far too great for any city of this size. The 700 or 800 represent only the dead letters for the holiday period.
While the office here puts forth
every effort itself to place the mail before forwarding it into Washing-

(Special To The News)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan.
5.—The other day I said that
Tom Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. had issued one of those
"cockeyed predictions."
Just got a wire from him

him that "predicted"; it was two other Lamonts.
He said that he wouldn't pre-

Rockefeller and Ford would be on the "dole before July 4."
Talk about Notre Dame and Alabama, but the greatest football player of all time passed away Saturday, "Papa" Joffre.
He stopped his opponents on the one-yard line and threw 'em for a forty-year loss.

Dry Amendment Is Held Valid

Case Virtually Identical With Clark Decision Handed Down In New York

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The eightteenth amendment was declared constitutional today by the circuit court of appeals in a decision handed down in a case virtually identical with that in which Federal Judge Clark of Newark held the dry law unconstitutional.
The opinion, delivered by Judges Manton, Hand and Chase, affirmed the conviction of Louise E. Thibault, who had appealed from the U. S.
district court in Vermont.

EXPECT TO RESUME FLIGHT TO BERMUDA

Captain William S. MacLaren and Mrs. Beryl Hart, New York flyers, are delayed on their scheduled two-stop flight across the Atlantic to Paris, at Hampton roads, where they were forced down Saturday. The two took off from New York on the first leg of the journey, to Bermuda. Below, the plane here on their freight-carrying flight from New York to Paris, in the monoplane "Tradewind," will resume their journey today.
They believe they were within 40 miles of Bermuda when a broken sextant forced their return, last Saturday night.
Lieut. E. C. Ewen, U. S. N. arrived from Annapolis last night with a bubble sextant.
Their flight may be delayed twenty four hours pending permission from naval authorities to use the instrument.

Department Of Public Utilities Is Proposed

Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—Pronounced changes in the statutes relating to public service companies and their regulation, and amendment of the Pennsylvania administrative code to add a new administrative department to be known as the department of public utilities, are proposed in two bills to be introduced in the legislature in the near future by Representative Louis W.
Hagmann of Aspinwall, and discussed here today by the public utilities committee of the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs.
"The intent of these two bills," said T. W. Chrostwaite, president of the association, "is not so much to change the law as it affects and regulates public service companies, as it is to change the method of its administration."

Suggests Embargo On Importation Of Wheat Into U. S.

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Representative Burton (R) of North Dakota introduced a bill calling for an embargo on importations of wheat, corn, oats, barley, mixed feeds, screenings, butter and butter substitutes—all products of which the United States has a surplus—until March 1, 1932.
The bill developed from a letter written by Alexander H. Legge, Chairman of the Farm Board, in which he stated that under certain circumstances he might favor an embargo of wheat.

To Make Survey For Road Work

Preliminary Steps Will Be Started Tomorrow On Road
To Burton Plant

Civil Engineer T. A. Gilkey and County Commissioner P. O. Elder will begin a survey tomorrow of the road which it is proposed to grade and improve, from the Mt. Jackson road near the foot of the Pitzer hill, to a point near the Burton Powder plant.

The road lies in North Beaver township. An agreement was recently reached between the North Beaver township supervisors and the county commissioners, under which the work is to be done on a fifty-fifty basis. Able bodied men who have been receiving help from the county will be given work on the project in lieu of the help which has been furnished.
It is figured that this plan will result in the improvement of the road at a minimum expense. It will be graded and then slacked. County Commissioner P. O. Elder, who has been delegated to look after the county's end, could not say this morning, just when operations will be started, but it will be as soon as the survey is completed and a blue print made. It is planned to do this work as speedily as possible.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—Uncertainty was the chief feature of the battle for election of a president pro tempore of the State senate today as members of the 129th Pennsylvania legislature today thronged the hotels and headquarters of the candidates, preparing for the party caucuses tonight at which the issue will be settled.
Despite the confidence radiated by supporters of Senator William D.
Mansfield, of Allegheny, candidate for the post with the approval of Governor-elect Gifford Pinchot, and the optimism manifested by Republican Senators who will "go the

Teaching Force Again Begins
Classes—Dr. Green Says
Students Are Happy

Back again in class rooms after a vacation of over two weeks pupils and teachers were today resuming classes and becoming acquainted once more with class schedules and routine work.
The teaching force of 273 instructors started classes today in 18 schools of the city with hardly a single absence, according to word from the administration building of the board of education.
Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent of schools, said today that a strong attendance of students and teachers has marked the close of the vacation, which started December 19.
The teaching staff has been refreshed by reports and announcements of the success of the Pennsylvania State Education association convention in Harrisburg, attended recently by several educational leaders of the city, including Dr.
Green.

Those New Year's resolutions, those ones you would not heave,
are showing signs of wear and tear, and scuff about the edge. There's places where they're shiny, and they need a patch or two, but the fact is they are nearly done, and most of them are through. For New Year's resolutions are made with fingers

Affidavits In Dague Case Ready

Await Arrival Of Officials From West Virginia To Take Deposition

Attorney Thomas W. Dickey, counsel for Glenn Dague and Irene Schroeder, stated this morning that he has prepared affidavits in the confession of Dague to a robbery in West Virginia for which Frank Howells is now serving time.

Officials are expected to arrive any day now to secure the deposition made by Dague, which will exonerate Howells of the crime, for which it is now believed he is unjustly serving time.

The crime for which Howells was arrested and convicted was committed on September 5, 1929, when a gasoline station was held up and robbed at Mountsville, W. Va. Howells established an alibi following his arrest, but was convicted despite this, largely on circumstantial evidence.

Death Toll From Poisoned Liquor Reaches To Ten

The majority of the victims resided in cheap rooming houses and hotels.

You're the JUDGE

Mr. Hickbotham, the storekeeper, was behind his counter talking to some customers and bystanders. Presently a man walked in and drew Mr. Hickbotham away. The two of them walked over to the rear of the store and engaged in some quiet conversation. Suddenly, however, Mr. Hickbotham spoke up, saying that he did not want to have anything more to do with the man, that the man was a thief and had been making his living by it, and so on in the same strain for several minutes. The man left, but that wasn't all. A suit was soon begun by him against Mr. Hickbotham for slander. At the trial Mr. Hickbotham claimed that there was not the publication to a third party that was required to make the slander suit valid, since those present in the store, if they heard what he said, did not understand what it was all about.

for a long time, present the first of a series of musical programs with the Detroit Symphony orchestra.

Last night's rain had a beneficial effect on the landscape washing off the scum of dirt which had accumulated while the ground was frozen up and covered with snow.

Sunday's and today's weather felt almost springlike, and was welcomed by those whose coal pile was diminishing.

Pa. News observed that most of the boys and girls returning to school this morning, did not appear quite as anxious for the resumption of school as they did last fall, following the summer vacation.

Most people take down their Christmas decorations after New Year's Day, but Pa. News still observes quite a few scattered about the city.

Weather conditions last night were peculiar. Smoke was hanging so low in the valley about dusk that it looked like a heavy fog.

There must have been considerable more snow over the Ohio in the direction of Petersburg than in Lawrence County. Remains of large snow drifts still were to be found on the roads in that district yesterday.

Pa. News bought a dozen eggs the other day from a local grocer. He remarked that if any chickens were found inside the shells to bring them back to the store. "We charge a little more for those kind of eggs," he added seriously.

Ohio automobile licenses this year are white with black letters.

School bells tingled this morning and great troops of youngsters responded. School teachers too started in work again, after spending their vacations leisurely.

State highways are evidently kept open for traffic in good shape, even in winter. Autos with licenses from distant states are seen very frequently on the streets here this winter.

Placing ashes on the hills is working a double advantage. The ashes keep the cars from skidding on the ice, and when the ice is gone to ashes work off to the side of the highway, ashing the berm of the road.

Firemen in several stations, including central, are awaiting a shipment of 24 new firemen's helmets. The helmets will be of leather and colored black, with white leather fronts.

Business started to pick up today with local hotels, who experienced a lean period over the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Lawrence county farmers will not care how much it rains today, as they have been praying for mild weather and a heavy downpour since last summer. If January's weather is equal to that of last year, they should find relief. There was a great excess of precipitation in January 1930.

from the West Indies and Bermuda, where they spent the Christmas holidays.

The city of Montgomery was one of 14 ships which anchored in Havana Harbor during the holiday celebration. Four liners, the Bermuda, Vendam, Britannic and Pan-America arrived here from Bermuda yesterday with 2,200 on board.

Signals Misunderstood

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Misunderstood signals in the haze that enveloped lower New York Bay sent the U. S. Government dredge Raritan to the bottom today after a collision with the City of Montgomery. There were fifty-seven officers and men on board the dredge when she was struck. All were rescued. The City of Montgomery, loaded with returning holiday passengers from Savannah, (Ga.) was not seriously damaged and was able to proceed to her pier without help.

The collision occurred in the main channel off Graven Shoals about a third of a mile south of Port Wadsworth.

It was the noise of the crash itself that brought the mail boat President, the first rescue vessel to reach the scene.

The President was tied up at the Wadsworth dock on Staten Island

Captain Andrew S. Hanson heard the roaring grind of tearing steel plates as the two vessels struck. He slipped his hawsers and put on full speed for the scene of the collision. The President lowered a life boat with two members of its crew, Ole Gren and Jack Hellesbo, on board with orders to row around the sink-in vessel and pick up any survivors who might be floating the water.

Meanwhile the crew of the Raritan were lowering lifeboats and pulling fires in the boiler room.

As the craft plunged to the bottom two of the crew, Hele Olsen and Sol Mendes, who had not been quick enough to find a place in the boats raced up the rigging to the foremasthead.

The Raritan settled in the channel with her masts sticking out of the water. The two survivors were taken from their precarious position by the President's lifeboats.

Two of the Raritan's lifeboats, containing the crew, were picked up by the President.

A smaller boat carrying the captain, John Peterson, and the first and second mates, Barney and John Christianson, brothers, was picked up by a police launch which was dispatched to aid rescue work as soon as word of the collision reached headquarters.

The survivors were brought to Pier A. at the Battery. So hastily had they abandoned ship that many of them had not had time to dress.

STATE SENATORS TO VOTE TONIGHT FOR NEW LEADER

Williamson, Huntington, John J. McClure, Delaware, and J. G. Homsher, Lancaster. The latter pair are claimed by both the Daix and Mansfield supporters.

To care for the interests of the Governor-elect in the pre-caucus discussions, former U. S. Senator Joseph R. Grundy was here as P. S. Stahlnecker, secretary to the incoming chief executive.

From Mansfield headquarters came a statement declaring the president pro tem issue to be one "between the public utilities, acting through the Philadelphia gang, and the rank and file of the people of Pennsylvania."

Daix-Martin Confident

Both Daix and Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, will preside at the caucus tonight, were apparently certain of election of the Philadelphia senator.

Gen. Martin reiterated his prediction of 27 votes for Daix, while the candidate himself forecast even more votes. Twenty-four votes will be necessary for the nomination when Republican senators caucus at 9 p. m. tonight.

Throughout today, efforts were to go forward to influence senators to swing that 24-vote bloc solidly behind one of the candidates.

In the house, little excitement is expected over selection of a speaker and other officers.

Representative C. Jay Goodnough, Cameron, Pa., who is expected to be elected to the speaker's post, without opposition. Resident Clerk Milton H. Burger, of Franklin county, and E. F. White, chief clerk, of Delaware county, are confident of re-election to their posts despite rumors of opposition.

Will Ballot Tonight

Democratic members of the legislature will also meet in caucus tonight but their meetings are slated to be perfunctory. The four Democratic senators will probably name Henry E. Lanus, blind York county senator, as their choice for president pro tem, while the score of house members are expected to ballot for W. G. Sarig, Berks, for speaker.

It was the Republican senate caucus which held the interest of everyone today. And its outcome was not expected to be known until the balloting for president pro tem gets under way shortly after nine o'clock tonight.

INSURGENTS THREATEN TO KICK UP BIG FUSS

a continuous political war until adjournment two months hence.

Debates Are Planned

The Power Commission's action in discharging two federal experts, favored by progressives, and the President's approval of the proposed rail merger topped the list of coalition grievances, both subjects will be debated promptly, and an effort made to force reconsideration of the Senate's previous action in confirming the new Power Commission.

The fast fading Norris-Lucas controversy, in which Robert H. Lucas, director of the Republican National Committee fought the re-election of Senator George W. Norris in Nebraska, will provoke further debate. The Insurgents have not finished their attack on Lucas, even though they have little hope of driving him out of office at present. The Nye campaign committee, which revealed the Lucas incident, will continue its inquiry, and may furnish more ammunition to the Insurgents.

The Farm Relief situation will be another subject of controversy. Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, has demanded enactment of the debtors' or a special session to consider other remedies.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde will appear before the Senate Appropriations Committee, asking immediate appropriation of $45,000,000 to carry out the Feed and Seed loans already authorized for drought-ridden states.

Inquiry Planned

The unemployment situation likewise will demand attention, since the same committee will start an inquiry tomorrow to determine whether the administration's $116,000,000 Public Works bill will furnish adequate relief. All government authorities connected with unemployment relief will be interviewed. In the end, the Senate will study their recommendations and decide for itself whether further legislative relief is required. The administration can block and additional legislation but the debate will furnish a new political issue for its critics.

In the background rest a half dozen additional aging issues.

But would Sinclair Lewis now have the Nobel prize if his books, equally clever, had caricatured Sweden?

THE LUSTROUS EVENING SKY IN JANUARY

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter
The evening sky in January is radiant with glory! The winter half of the Milky Way—the opposite half from that seen in summer—makes a radiant background for Cassiopeia, Perseus, Auriga and Gemini, while Taurus, Orion and Canis Major abide close to this shining stream of light.

In the eastern sky, Leo is coming down in the east, Pegasus is going down in the west. The Big Dipper stands on the end of its handle up in the northeast with its open bowl toward the west. The many opalescent stars on display in January's evening sky are thrilling and bewitching. If that scene does not stir the emotions of the observer, his state is hopeless!

Southern Ohio Coal Field Threatened By Disastrous Blaze

(International News Service) ZANESVILLE O., Jan. 5.—Virtual thousands of acres of coal lands in the Cannellville district, about 11 miles south of here, were threatened today with destruction by fire which has been raging for the past 10 days in the Cannell No. 7 vein on the Orville Dozer farm.

State mine inspectors have been attempting to extinguish the flames so far have been unsuccessful. Because of the proximity of the flaming mine to large gas wells in the territory, residents said the blazing fire, presented grave danger.

According to mine inspectors, in the event the fire remains unchecked, it will preface destruction of the gas wells, also.

One production well is located on the Dozer farm with an outlet pipe line directly across the flaming mine.

The fire was discovered December 26 when workers returning after the Christmas vacation found their paths blocked by the fumes of the blazing interior. Both entries to the shaft were walled off by fire and gas and all attempts to enter since have proved futile.

Residents of the district were terrified yesterday as ground over the working mine in several places. It is feared in some sections the fire may gain proportions similar to those in the Newstratville field where a coal mine fire has been blazing away since 1884.

monastic bareness of his room in the clinic of Saint Jean De Dieu and transferred to the military institution.

Public Views Body.
Only members of the staff followed the cortege as a special guard of honor. The public was admitted to view the body from 9:00 a. m. to 10:00 a. m.

Dressed in the long black military coat which "Papa" Joffre wrapped about himself in those crucial days of 1914 when he was the momentous task of holding the battering armies of Germany at bay. "The man regarded as the victor of the Marne" will be viewed for the last time by hundreds of thousands expected to file past the catafalque between now and Wednesday.

On Tuesday evening a public procession will form to escort the body to the cathedral of Notre Dame. On its way to that mellow edifice, the cortege will pass under the Arc De Triomphe, so many times the scene of happy and mournful ceremonies participated in by the Marshal, and pause a full minute beside the grave of France's unknown soldier.

Will Carry Out Wish.
The burial service at Notre Dame and the subsequent march to Les Invalides will follow the order used at the funeral of the late Marshal Foch.

The express wish of Joffre that he be buried in his cherished garden at Leveauxnes will be respected for the present, although at sometime in the future the body may be placed alongside those of the nation's unde, the dome of Les Invalides, where rest Napoleon and Foch.

The old soldier's own gardener has taken upon himself the task of digging a grave amidst the flower beds that occupied much of the warrior's time in his moments off duty.

THE RAIL MERGER

THE interstate commerce commission is expected to approve the plan of consolidating the railroads between Chicago and New York into four great systems, which has met with the approval of the railroads involved and of President Hoover.

Public opinion will be inclined to accept any arrangement that is satisfactory to the roads, provided the public interest is not sacrificed, and the public interest is secure if Mr. Hoover is convinced that the merger will not only expedite railroad and unemployment relief but will eventually bring about reduced freight rates.

News of the agreement had a stimulating effect upon railroad shares in Wall Street. The plan could have had no better recommendation, for this is an informed market. The prospect that the principal railroads are to be relieved of the doubts that have surrounded them is in itself encouraging.

If the merger plan is finally approved and adopted, the roads can proceed with economies in assimilating operations among their subsidiaries and plans for electrification, and other improvements can be launched. It will also facilitate negotiation of loans for improvements.

The four plan system also means much to New Castle, as this city will become the junction point for the new B. & O. short line across Pennsylvania to New York City. This will be one of the mighty important key positions on the new route.

NUMBERED DAYS

Superstitious or matter of fact, take new hope from 1931. The believer in omens, signs and the several manias and ologies need harbor no fears. They may expect good fortune for the next 90 and nine years.

Four times in the last 27 years has the cabalistic and ominous figure 13 been the equivalent of the total of the digits of the year—1903, 1912, 1921, 1930. That is explanation enough to the faithful for the dire events of last year.

But the total of the four digits in 1931 equals 14, an innocuous enough number, and the dreaded 13 will not bring ill fortune again until 1940.

Skeptics, however, will want a better guarantee of peace, prosperity and plenty than that which suffices those who look to necromancy and black magic to tell them what the future has in store for them. They have it.

Perhaps the best assurance that 1931 is to see better things is the universal determination to make it better. With the entire world firmly resolving to work and build and produce, and with optimism breathing from every pore of every man, the days of hard times on this troubled globe are numbered.

MARSHAL JOFFRE

The passing of Marshal Joffre reminds the world how swiftly the great leaders of the World War period are passing on. One of the oldest of the military chiefs, he was of the last to go. But few remain.

France and her former allies have preferred to know this great military man as "Papa" Joffre. They could not have better expressed the affection and reverence they held for him, their protector and defender.

Joseph Jacques Cesaire Joffre won for himself a place high among the military strategists of all time in the battle of the Marne. History records it as his victory, not a victory of one army over another. If the victory at the Marne was a "miracle," the miracle worker was Marshal Joffre. Those orders from him on August 24, 1914, for the reconstruction of the left wing of the French army by a junction of the fourth and fifth armies with the British army and the new forces turned back the invading hordes and saved Paris.

France honors Marshal Joffre for a different reason than it commemorates the name of Napoleon. Both were great military leaders, but the emperor was only a military genius, not a savior of his country. France takes pride in the name of Napoleon; she loves "Papa" Joffre.

The American people quickly took this heroic Frenchman to their hearts, accepting him as one of their own heroes—the man who saved the war for them to win.

THE ONE WHO HOLDS ON

The greatest men in the world have not been without reverses. But they have come up again, strengthened by the struggle.

Take General Grant as a striking illustration. He was a dismal failure for half his life. But he never gave up his high ideals or his efforts to attain them. When the crucial time came he was ready for it. His opportunity had been created within him.

At the close of the first day of the battle of Shiloh, a day of severe Union reverses, General Grant received from his much-discouraged chief of staff, McPherson, the report: "Things look bad, General. We have lost half our artillery and a third of the infantry. Our line is broken and we are pushed back almost to the river. What can we do?"

"Reform the lines," said Grant, "and attack at daylight. And won't they be surprised!"

Surprised indeed they were, and routed before 9 o'clock.

Even the strongest-hearted must fail, not only once, but again and again. But what of that? Life is a campaign, not a single day's battle.

Everyone who succeeds must meet such crises, and must avert disaster by a prompt reforming of lines and a surprising early attack.

There is no real defeat for the one who holds on courageously in a right cause.

The only permanent and hopeless failure comes through a soul-surrender.

FALLING METEORS

Few things are so calculated to arouse the interest and stir the imagination of people as a meteor which is large enough or approaches near enough to the earth to convince every witness of the spectacle that it fell "just over the roof tops."

Astronomers estimate that more than 10,000,000 meteors strike the earth's atmosphere daily, but few of them reach the earth. The moment a meteor enters the earth's atmosphere its pace is slowed down by friction with the air, and its outer surface is heated by the same process. Meteoric velocities as high as 75 miles a second have been reported. Were it not for the earth's shell of protecting atmosphere, man would be pelted continually by these bodies.

Most meteors are so small, however, that the total weight added to the earth is only 36,500 tons a year. At this rate it would take 1,600,000 years to accumulate a layer one inch thick over the earth's entire surface. The largest meteor ever found in the United States was discovered at Willamette, Oregon, and weighs 31,000 pounds.

When the earth becomes much more densely populated than it is at present meteors will occasionally cause death and destruction. They have not done so in the past because only a relatively small part of the earth's surface is populated.

HERE'S A FUNNY ONE

The job of claim agent for a Public Utility corporation, such as a railroad, is one that requires a special brand of ability. In dealing with minor cases, such as running over and killing a cow, or maiming a chicken, the claim agent must be particularly endowed with persuasive powers in order to prevent the court calendar from becoming clogged, and at the same time, settle the claims against his company for as little as possible. Up in Minnesota, the railroad ran past Yonson's farm. Yonson's cow shared that belief peculiar to the bovine family, that grass in the further pasture was greener than the grass in her own grazing-ground. The further pasture was on the other side of the railroad tracks and no sooner had bossy set her forefeet on the ties that held down the rails, than a train came rushing along and sent her headlong to kingdom come. The engineer duly reported the accident and the claim agent just as duly called to see Mr. Yonson about the matter. "Of course, you know, Mr. Yonson," he began in his most impressive manner, "that the railroad tracks are our property right of franchise and your cow had no legal right to trespass on our tracks. However, we do not desire to enter into lengthy litigation and I should say that ten dollars would be a very fair compensation. How does that strike you?" Yonson scratched his head, shifted his feet about and thought deeply. "Ay, ban a poor man, Mister," he said dejectedly, "but Ay give you tray dollars."

EXPLOSION OF A HARD-BOILED EGG

He sat in the corner and glowered. He humbled and he raged and he spluttered and at last he blew up. He said:

"Don't you dare to forgive me. I won't have it. I won't stand for it! If I've done something you don't like, get mad at me. Don't be so sweet about it. Spit it out and say what you think about me. Don't be kind and understanding. Blow me up! Don't be forgiving!"

"I can stand anything. I can stand hard words or a sock on the jaw. I can stand sarcasm and abuse, but I can't stand forgiveness. I can fight back if you oppose me. If you tell me exactly what you think of me—but I can't fight forgiveness."

"When you forgive me, you're taking a Mean Advantage, you're hitting below the belt. I KNOW YOU. You aren't really feeling kind and generous when you tell me you forgive me, you are really being cruel and subtle and trying to put me in the wrong. . . . And I Won't Have It! I want to fight, and you won't let me. You insist on being Superior. You say you forgive me and I don't deserve forgiveness. I'm tough, I'm mean—but you won't let me be a Hard-Boiled Egg. You insist on being kind to me. . . . and understand. . . . and I Don't Like It. It puts me on the bum and I hate being put on the bum. You win, and I can't fight back when you forgive me. You're a hypocrite, you're not really forgiving at all—you just say you are, but how can I prove it, how can I win if you won't fight. It takes two to make a fight, and YOU won't fight. That's dirty of you, that's being crooked. I'm Mad. . . . I want to Stay Mad. . . . and You Won't Let Me."

"But I'll get back at you. Some time when you're angry at me, manufacturing hate and shooting hard words at me, I'll get back at you. . . . I'll be a Christian, too. I'll suddenly see you as you are. I'll suddenly, in a flash, see you as you are. I'll see you as mean and hard and bad-tempered as you pretend. And I'll forgive you as you are forgiving me this minute. I'll say you're Not Yourself today, that you're saying things you don't really mean, and I'll take all the wind out of your sails. I'll get even, you just wait until I Forgive YOU!"

That's how the hard-boiled egg exploded, and I think I get his point of view. . . . Don't you?

Recent suggestions in favor of "competitive education" as a college activity and a program of physical education for all students is endorsed by the SANTA ROS PRESS DEMOCRAT, with the statement: "It may be that the whole physical education for all students is a rational idea. If students compete—which they must—they might compete among themselves as individuals or as class teams. It might be a good idea to stop trying to beat all other colleges while furnishing entertainment for the paying public which ought to be doing its own exercising. If this new athletic idea ever becomes established the way may be cleared for reviving the quaint old educational idea which made cultivation of the mind the primary work of colleges. Some intellectual competition might be an interesting experiment."

"There is no other country in the world," argues the DETROIT FREE PRESS, "where athletic contests hold so large a place in college life as they do in the United States," and that paper also maintains that "partly as a consequence, there is probably no other country in the world that gets so little education for the amount of money that it spends for educational institutions as this country. That paper, however, thinks that its own body is not worth much to society unless it contains a sound mind, at least on speaking terms with those branches of knowledge that colleges and universities are maintained to impart."

Free gate in athletics," in the COURIER-JOURNAL, would hardly work the solution alone, although the elimination of money paid by those who desire to see great teams in action might go far toward doing away with the atmosphere of commercialism. The Courier-Journal holds that "the alumni who pay the tuition of football stars, and often find themselves means of employment by which they may profit without too great an amount of labor, have given the same bad name, which is to develop the physical qualities of the student body. The MARTINSBURG EVENING JOURNAL advises that "if a few more college presidents will take the stand of Dr. Butler, football may be relegated eventually to its proper place, and education established upon a more serious basis."

"Football for many years has grown up into a powerful interest among our colleges. Other sports look to its yield for the money to meet the expense of putting crews on the water and track teams in the field. A good many university authorities look to the football team to supply their institutions with national advertising and to keep the student body and the faculty to fact the strength of football, hold on academic life and thought sometimes leaves the outside observer in some doubt as to which is the tail and which is the dog. Dr. Butler's proposal would furnish a means for determining the answer to this interesting anatomical problem."

The assertion that Dr. Butler makes "a homeless dog" is made by the ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS, which believes that "even his associates in the presidents' chairs are not averse to prostituting their educational responsibilities to the publicity that a winning team brings." The ANNISTON STAR, however, is convinced that "students would not enter heartily into sports if the intercollegiate competition should be eliminated" and that "gate receipts bring the needed money and also funds for other purposes." The NEW BEDFORD STANDARD declares that "there are risks in Dr. Butler's proposal—not the least of them being the risk that the subsidy could not be raised."

"Many colleges are paying the way of other sports with football profits, building gigantic stadiums and other athletic plants," observes the DAYTON DAILY NEWS, with the conclusion that "there is evidence on both sides of the fence."

"What Dr. Butler no doubt had in mind," says the DES MOINES TRIBUNE-CAPITAL, "was that if the alumni had to pay for their fun for them, more than any other, insist upon highly competitive intercollegiate contests, they would let the colleges manage their own affairs and restore sports to something like their proper place. Perhaps Butler has not thought his scheme out to its logical end. It would be more effective if every time an alumni made a suggestion he would have to pay $100 for every demand, $500. And any alumni who wished to fire the football coach for losing the big game of the season would have to pay $5,000. The Columbia president's plan should not be dismissed too soon. It is on the right track."

When the boy departed, the boss turned to one of his subordinates. "When did we hire that boy?" he demanded.

"We never hired him," came the astonishing answer. "He just brought a package from another firm."

The "pompous head" had some imagination for as he turned away he was heard to say, "Well, it is Christmas week anyway."

YOU ARE FORTUNATE, TOO

You enjoy Summer sports in the north country but cannot go South to continue your favorite pastimes when the weather is too cool at home.

Instead of feeling happy that certain friends can get away even if you can't, you let green-eyed envy and spite tell you to be spiteful.

You listen to thoughtless chatter that it is unfair that you cannot do as some of your friends are doing and you think favors in this world are not evenly enough distributed.

Your two weeks of vacation sinks to insignificance when you think of how many weeks and even months some of your friends can take from work for play.

You give not a thought to the many late afternoons from the early Spring days until late in the Fall when you can and do play golf or drive.

There are plenty of persons who cannot get off any day.

You can follow your inclinations a little every day you are in good health and as a family you are content, prosperous, if not one of the idle rich.

You have no just cause to complain and ungratefulness plus envy are the two little demons that you are allowing to spoil an otherwise happy life.

Give consideration to some of your good fortune much more than many persons are able to enjoy.

ARE YOU GOING TO AFFEY AN ARCADE OR AN ORATORY?

Butler Attack On Profits In Football Wins Attention

President Of Columbia University Produces Debate On Overemphasis Of Sports And The Question Of Greater Alumni Participation

National interest in the commercial side of college football has been aroused by the suggestion from Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, that gate receipts be abolished and that alumni take charge of defraying the cost of intercollegiate contests.

The belief that "wherever three or four first-rate universities decide to place football on a strictly amateur basis the trick can be done" is voiced by the NEW YORK SUN with the suggestion as to the handling of the sport. "Football is too fine a game to lose its popularity among players and spectators. Of late, however, it has become an amusement enterprise of vast proportions. Some of the boys are beginning to ask why they should toil like galley slaves to make money for alma mater and money and reputation for the coach. Some day it may occur to them that the whole commercial process of modern football would fall without their cooperation. They may then decide to put the fun back into football and take the business out."

"Dr. Butler's line of thought may be a very good one," advises the CLEVELAND NEWS, "but it seems to neglect several factors which unquestionably exert a large influence on the situation. He appears to overlook, for example, the notion so persistent among university alumni that victorious athletic representation must be obtained at whatever cost. This notion must account for a great share of the abuses Dr. Butler decries. It would scarcely be affected by any endowment fund. In some instances university authorities themselves have given evidence of believing that the advertising worth of a winning football team justifies professionalism. Would this be corrected by an endowment fund? And what of the proselyting coach whose job depends on producing winners? The truth of the matter is that just now popular esteem attaches to the university athlete as a victory

Feeling Bad Today? Listen, Here's Good News

What's the use in kidding yourself? If you feel tired and run down, you ought to do something about it before some serious illness strikes. You ought to build up your body so it's one hundred per cent fit. The way to do this, say doctors, is to take cod liver oil. But don't take dry cod liver oil the old-fashioned liquid way. Take it the modern way in tiny tasteless tablets. McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are made from the vitamins of the finest cod liver oil that Norway can produce. You get all the healthful benefits, but no nasty taste. That's why doctors so widely prescribe them. That's why Good Housekeeping Institute has given them its seal of approval. If you want to lead a happy, healthy, normal life, accept this good advice. Go to your druggist and get a box of McCoy's today. They're just what the doctors say you need—60 tablets—60 cents.

Much Indigestion Due To Emotional Strain

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Dyspepsia used to be called by the English "The American Disease." Soda water fountains, bus-burners, rush, push, strain, grip, swallow, non-chewing, irritability—such were the obvious things the calm and serene Anglo-Saxon lords of creation saw as the causes of the American indigestion.

How much dyspepsia in America has increased of late I do not know, but since the war, and since British empire (almost but not quite consolidated) stock has declined somewhat, it seems to have made great progress within the etiolated shores of Albion.

Which is to say that much indigestion is due to emotions. It is nervous indigestion. And just to show that there is such an entity I refer to my friend, Dr. Walter Alvarez's recent book, "Nervous Indigestion." Dr. Alvarez is physician to the Mayo Clinic, so we may assume the term has scientific standing.

A recent study was made of the patients complaining of stomach trouble who entered a large New York clinic. Few of them had any actual disease of the stomach—most of them had worry and fear, economic and domestic trouble, love affairs, business worries as the cause of their symptoms.

A wise physician asks his stomach patients: "What disease do you think you have?" The patient may have become fearful of some disease, had stomach discomfort as a result, and in reciting the symptoms of the stomach trouble, let fall no hint of the real thing he was afraid of. Perhaps he will even deliberately conceal mention of the feared disease, and try to guess from the doctor's attitude whether he is suspicious of it. The poor doctor may not have the faintest idea what is really bothering the patient, the symptoms may not suggest the disease feared at all but because the patient makes no mention of it, no special denial of its presence, the patient's whole life is poisoned when the question, "What disease are you afraid you have?" is asked, or "Tuberculosis," or "Heart trouble," or "syphilis."

To all such fears the stomach may react by producing the symptoms of indigestion. It has been called the greatest liar in the anatomy.

Why the stomach should be the sensitive plate or the alarm bell for the whole body is hard to say. But such is certainly the case. "It made me sick at my stomach." Not a little. A gruesome sight, an accident, the news of someone's death, the loss of money, the presence of a rival in love—in short, the stomach responded to some assault on the emotions. How about chronic emotional distress, chronic anxiety, repeated disappointments? Won't they be translated into chronic stomach symptoms? Certainly.

Not only in the functional field but also in organic trouble, the stomach may respond when disease elsewhere. Simple instances are the nausea, pain and gas of gallstones, the anorexia (lack of appetite) of tuberculosis, the vomiting of brain tumors, the fitful appetite of pernicious anemia.

For these reasons diet cannot be expected to cure all cases of stomach trouble. When the exact diagnosis has been made two general forms of diet may be used. They will be discussed tomorrow.

Peter's Adventures

PETER LEADS ANT BRIGADE

Peter smiled as he thought of what he had done in the sentry's absence—a trip to the oak tree in the meadow and back again up Ant Hill, and Commander never as much as guessed it. But Peter held his tongue, and slid down the hill to join the Commander.

"Where do we go from here?" asked the boy.

"Straight to headquarters," answered Commander. "That you shall know in for an ant of my word. Right here and now I appoint you Leader of the Spike Brigade. Now then, hold up your claw." Peter held up his right hand.

"Do you solemnly swear to fight for the right and to protect us with your life?" asked Commander.

"I solemnly swear to fight for the right and to use my trusty spear in defense of any one who needs it," swore Peter.

"Well, that's not quite what I said, but I guess it is good enough," said Commander. Now you are one of us, Boy Warriors, salute him!"

The Redskins gave the military salute with their antennae and Peter returned it, clicking his heels together. Stepping close to him, Commander seized Peter's spear.

"Huh! I don't think so much of your weapon, after all," said he examining the spike closely. "I wonder if it is worth all the trouble I took to force you into our army. I don't believe you can do so much damage with it as I thought! Ouch!"

Commander Ant had stabbed herself.

Next: "Aid for the Injured."

Don't let SORE THROAT get the best of you...

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore! Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

MUSTEROLE BETTER THAN A MUSTARD PASTER

The loss (estimated) caused by these fires amounted to $16,692.75. Loss on buildings.....$ 9,630.00 Loss on contents.....7,062.75

$16,692.75 Of this amount, all was covered by insurance with the exception of $2,600.00.

Service truck B answered to five alarms calling for assistance from townships bordering on the city limits, as follows: Union township, one; Neshannock township, two; Shenango township, two.

Without a doubt the following places were saved from total destruction by the city fire department:

The Carl Barth store and dwelling at the junction of the Pulaski and Wilmington roads was extinguished with a loss of only $100 to the building and approximately $10 to contents. The fire was in Neshannock township.

The home of C. P. Davis on Pennsylvania avenue extension in Shenango township was confined to a loss of $700 on building and $400 on contents.

The Clifford Love home on the Butler road in Shenango township was saved from destruction with a loss of $250 on the building and approximately $100 to contents.

The frame fairview school house on Highland avenue in Neshannock township was saved from destruction with a loss of about $200 to the building and about $50 to contents. Deducting these amounts, which total about $1,492.75.

All fires in the different townships were extinguished with the booster tank of the B service truck. The Davis home on Pennsylvania avenue was so near the city line that it was possible to lay a line of hose from the last city fire hydrant on that street.

At the Barth store on Wilmington avenue company B was assisted with the large chemical tank of No. 2 company.

Yours respectfully, CHARLES H. LYNN.

State Can Secure U. S. Road Funds At Once

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—With the state's cooperation, the sum of $10,734,174 could be expended immediately on new federal-aid highway projects in Pennsylvania, the Keystone state ranking fifth in the country in this respect, and of $7,025,886 can be expended without the use of any state funds, according to an announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

The amount on hand for expenditure in Pennsylvania without the use of any state money includes the $3,512,943 share of the $80,000,000 apportionment provided by the Act of Congress of December 20, 1930, for emergency construction. This fund may be used by the state in place of state funds to match regular federal-aid funds previously authorized and apportioned.

However, the advance of the $3,512,943 emergency fund will be limited to the sums actually paid for work performed under new contracts before September 1, 1931. Such advances are to be reimbursed to the federal government over a period of five years, commencing with the fiscal year 1933, by making deductions from regular apportionments of future federal-aid authorizations. No part of such funds is available for road projects on which convict labor is used.

In addition to the $7,025,886 available to Pennsylvania for federal-aid road construction without any financial cooperation on the part of the state, the sum of $1,854,144 also remains in the state's federal-aid fund, but it will be necessary for this to be matched by a corresponding amount of state money.

Federal-aid funds available therefore total $8,880,030, which when added to the sum of $1,854,144 that must be supplied by the state if it is to use the entire apportionment makes a minimum total of $10,734,174 for new federal-aid projects.

Bread Price War Occurs In Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Bread sold for three cents a loaf here Saturday.

A bread "war" between two groups of bakers was responsible. The fight started a week ago when 150 bakers employed by members of the Hebrew "Master Bakers' Club" refused to accept a 25 per cent cut in wages and were locked out, they said.

The former employees set up their own bakery and sold at three cents a pound. Their opponents were charging five cents.

Children Of Home Have Sly Means Of Enjoying Life In Their Hospital

No, no one ever hinted that the children of the Margaret L. Henry home get sick on purpose. When they get chickenpox, or measles, or diphtheria, it is just Nature and her army of germs who does it.

But it has been hinted that the children maybe perhaps stay sick longer than is necessary? They like their little private hospital and so do their best to prolong their indisposition—even to the point of swallowing a couple extra spoonfuls of "castor oil."

Tonsils are legitimate excuses for a Henry home child to spend a couple of days in the hospital building that stands at the rear of the main building on Friendship street. Or should we say, the absence of tonsils, for it is, of course, after the tonsils have been extracted from the little throats, that the children are brought to the hospital building.

It isn't just the novelty of a different building that makes the hospital ward so popular with the little lads and lassies. It is that, plus lying in bed as long as they want to, plus being served with food in bed, plus a lot of extra attention from Mrs. Lida Green, an assistant matron who has charge of the hospital department of the home.

When in the hospital, there is no doubt in the world that you are a "special" and it is nice to be recognized as a "special."

And so, long after the last measles has disappeared, long after the throats are healed, the hospital "specials" twiddle their little thumbs in bed, droop their mouths in a sickly manner, and think they are putting something over on their nurse—when they swallow another gulp of castor oil!

British Flying Boat For Service In India

16-Passenger, 4-Motor Aircraft
Will Carry Mails At 132
Miles Per Hour Speed

A sixteen-passenger, four-motor flying boat is being manufactured at Rochester, Kent, England for operation, by Imperial Airways over the Mediterranean and other sections on the air mail and passenger route to India, according to a dispatch received in the Department of Commerce from Trade Commission William L. Kilgore, London, England.

In addition to the four rows of passengers, the aircraft will have space for a crew of three, a compartment for the wireless operator, a hold in front for 3500 pounds of mail and in the back space for baggage and lavatories. The bottom of the hull is stainless steel, thus eliminating corrosion; the motors are arranged in a row of four "nacelles" between the biplane wings.

Each motor is moderately supercharged up to a height of 5000 feet enabling the craft to give best performance at that height—132 miles an hour at top speed and 100 miles per hour cruising. Fully loaded the new flying boat will weigh between thirteen and fourteen tons.

Clerk Held Up And Robbed On Her Way Home

Uses Gun In Compelling Mrs.
F. I. Straub To Give Up
Her Money

Enroute home from her work at the New Castle Dry Goods company store about 6:30 p. m. Saturday, Mrs. F. I. Straub, 316 Cunningham avenue, was held up as she was crossing the former Old Stone Church cemetery property, East Washington street, on her way home.

Mrs. Straub had reached the former cemetery property and started to cross it and to the rear of bill boards on it, when a man stepped from behind a tree or some other object on the property and ordered her to turn over her packages to him.

She was at first inclined to believe that it was someone fooling with her, but when the man made the second demand, she saw a gun in his hand. He reached and took her pocketbook, containing $10.50 and other articles of value and then made a quick getaway.

Mrs. Straub rushed to her home, which was but a short distance away, told of her experience, and the police were called. Lieutenant of Police Peter Hillers and Officer John Moore answered the call and searched the district but could not locate the holdup man.

The holdup man was described as being five feet six inches in height, wearing a gray cap, long coat and having a gray voice.

TIMES CHANGE

The legislature in New York is going to be asked this Winter to define "caste character" in a girl or woman. The question came up in court recently and after long deliberation, a jury was unable to arrive at a verdict.

Someday "Yes" and some said "No." The only legal guidance The Court could give the twelve good men and true was prompted by a decision of the Supreme Court back in 1884.

The evidence in the Supreme Court case was that a girl had gone buggy-riding with several different lads, one of whom she allowed to put his arm around her and kiss her. And in 1884 that was sufficient for The Court to rule that the young lady was not of chaste character. In fact, The Court said, her actions were "indicative of great laxity of moral obligations."

RUSTIC ECONOMY

With every one preaching thrift—common sense applied to trading—the story of a day in the life of Lester Green, a farmer, may be enlightening.

Green set out on his recent Yuletide shopping with ten barrels of apples as his sole capital. He swapped the apples for thirty bags of flour. Twenty-nine of these bags he exchanged for a cargo of ham. All day long he continued this bartering process, and when he returned home Christmas Eve (so they say) he was driving a Model T Ford instead of the horse and cart in which he started, and in addition had the fixings for a fine Christmas dinner, a tree, a coat for Mrs. Green, a pipe, a pound of tobacco, five gallons of gasoline and 50 cents.

FELLOW FEELINGS

For one year Longacre Lil went up and down Broadway trying to get the fi-nanciers of Mazda Lane interested in a plush-lined nickel-plated Hotte Dogge Salon, finished in the ultra-modern note—all steel and angles. There'd be heavy carpets, a footman at the door and a Negro chasseur resplendent in blue. The waiters would be garbed as at the Ritz.

"As the town's leading Frank-furtuese," said Lil, "I can elevate the lowly Hotte Dawgee not alone to a plane of social eminence, but shoehorn it into one of the best paying ventures in New Yawk."

Everybody thought Lil was getting balmy; and now, an American has come along and put the identical idea into practice in Montparnasse where most of the novelities in Parisian night-life have their inception. There, nightly, beautifully gowned women and men

Fake Alarms Follow Fire Station Cut

One Of Youngstown's Trucks Damaged As Half-Time Department Spends Busy Day

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 5.—With six of this city's eleven fire houses shut down and the entire fire department cut to half time, the curtailed force was kept busy Sunday answering a half dozen fake alarms.

"This is a rotten time for joking like that," Fire Chief Harry Callan remarked, as he tried to figure out how to give this industrial center fire protection from the remaining five stations and with only half a force.

The curtailment came Saturday on a retrenchment order issued by Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan, who also ordered the police force put on half time.

It was learned tonight that the police department has only 40 gals of gasoline on hand and the city purchasing agent refuses to approve requisition for an additional supply.

All police cars, used by flying squads and the like, have been ordered out of service so that the meager gasoline supply might be conserved for use in the emergency cars.

Fire Truck Smashed

To add to the city's troubles, one of the fire trucks skidded while answering one of the false alarms Sunday and was damaged.

Chief Callan predicts an increase in fire insurance rates if the present curtailment of his force and equipment is allowed to continue.

City councilmen threaten to override Mayor Heffernan's order when they meet tonight but Finance Director James E. Jones asserts Council is without authority in the matter.

"You can legislate all you care to," he said today, "but when the money is not there, you can't pay."

Jones indicated no relief was in sight before July. He proposes to advise the council to pass a six months' appropriation ordinance.

Councilman W. S. Vaughn said that council will urge reinstatement of the police and fire department to full time, "even though it would mean paying the men in script," he said.

Fire Damages High School At Bellefontaine, O.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Jan. 5.—Fire chief Horace Blair has asked the Ohio fire marshal's office to investigate the cause of the $40,000 fire which Saturday night swept the Bellefontaine high school. Blair said he believed a pyromaniac started the blaze on the stairway leading to the third floor.

P. Q. Freeman principal, indicated that the blaze might cause classes to be suspended for more than a week. Arrangements were being made tonight to hold classes in downtown buildings so that the post-vacation session could begin at once.

Firemen carried out valuable paintings and statuary when fire threatened to raze the buildings, valued at $100,000 and built in 1910.

Penna. Bituminous Mines Cut Deaths

293 Fatalities In 1930, 85 Below 1929 Mark, With Heavier Production Year

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—The bituminous coal mines of Pennsylvania established a 30 year record by holding fatalities below the 300 mark, the Department of Mines announced today.

The year closed with 293 fatalities with an estimated production of 125,000,000 net tons, which was 85 fewer fatalities than in 1929 which had a production of 142,351,359 net tons.

This is the first time in 30 years the bituminous mines have been able to get through a normal working year with such a low fatality figure," the statement said.

The anthracite mines had 438 fatalities with an estimated production of 70,000,000 net tons. This figure was 45 below 1929 when fatalities numbered 483, with a production of 72,955,844 net tons.

Woman's Party's Home Dedicated

Equal Rights Amendment Is Demanded At Belmont House In Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The old purple, white and gold banners of the feminist forces gleamed again Sunday in a sunny noontime ceremony dedicating Alva Belmont House as Capitol Hill headquarters of the National Woman's Party.

Through the speeches sounded the post-suffrage rallying cry of the party sounded—a demand for the Equal Rights amendment on which hearings will be held Tuesday before the Senate judiciary committee.

Held aloft by more than 40 girls in flowing capes, the very standards and streamers used in picketing the White House eleven years ago made a colorful foreground to Alva Belmont house, described as "both a laboratory and a museum of feminism."

From the second-story doorway above that mass of color, speakers over the National Broadcasting Co. radio network lauded the leadership of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the party and donor of the old brick control headquarters whose advantageous sale in condemnation proceedings made possible the purchase of the handsome and historic brick building dedicated today.

Presents $10,000 Check

Mrs. Harvey Wiley, national chairman of the Woman's Party, reading a greeting from Mrs. Belmont, now in Paris, concluded with the presentation of a $10,000 check from her to be used toward construction of an equal rights auditorium.

Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican floor leader, introduced as the "women's champion in the old suffrage days, asserted women had proved a conservative rather than a revolutionary factor in politics.

"Those of us who had to do with the submission and adoption of the suffrage amendment have had no reason to regret the enfranchisement of women," he said.

Senator Caraway of Arkansas introduced as one "who has always stood for the advancement of women," described a suffrage crusader, parade down Pennsylvania Avenue eighteen years ago, and added that much for which they marched had been accomplished.

Miss Doris Stevens, closely associated with Mrs. Belmont in the suffrage fight, made the personal dedication to her of the historic old Georgian brick mansion.

Liners' Wide Stairs Found Dangerous

Narrow Ones Safer, British Architect Holds, When Ships Are Tilted

NEWCASTLE, Eng., Jan. 5.—The wire staircases and spacious halls and passages of a great ocean liner may add to the attractiveness of the ship for the passengers so long as nothing happens, but such copies of land architecture may become veritable death traps, if the ship gets into trouble at sea and takes a strong list to one side or the other.

In addition to such wide stairs as may be provided for appearance's sake ships should be equipped, E. F. Spanner, British marine architect and engineer, recently insisted before the North-East Coast Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders at Newcastle, with a number of narrow stairways which even relatively feeble passengers still can climb no matter how the vessel may be tilted.

Modern passenger ships are equipped, Mr. Spanner pointed out, with ample boat accommodations and with many safety devices for loading the passengers into the boats, for getting the boats away safely and for keeping these boats afloat after they are launched, but too little thought has been given, he urged to arrangements for getting the passengers to the boat deck easily and quickly in case of accident.

The wide stairways being virtually unclimbable when tilted members of the crew must carry many passengers up from the lower decks when all crew members are urgently needed elsewhere. Thoroughgoing study of the problems of disembarking ships' passengers in an emergency probably would indicate also, Mr. Spanner believe, need of some arrangements for getting boats away from some of the lower decks as well as from the topmost one.

Tombstone Hazards In Cemetery Golf Play

MACON, Ga., Jan. 5.—Diminutive golf is perhaps not so ubiquitous now as it once was, but George Anderson, Jr., negro, was brought before police court for playing it in the Rose Hill cemetery.

Policeman Pat Lord testified he saw Anderson teeing off from a grave with a flower cup as No. 1 hole. Tombstones served as hazards. Several negroes were playing, Lord said, but the others ran and were not caught.

"Two dollars green fees," was the verdict of Judge Hatcher.

Carpenters Ask Lower Assessment

Council today was visited by a delegation of carpenters who said that the $300 occupational assessment in their opinion was too high. Some of the men said they had been assessed at $600 or the contractor rate.

Some of them told of conditions in their vocation, one stating that his salary return had not reached the amount at which he was rated. Council requested the carpenters to furnish the names of the carpenters and the matter would be considered by the board of revision.

Fee Elimination Is County's Gain

Sheriff's Office Nets Considerable Sum For County During Year

Quite a difference between what the sheriff would have received under the old fee bill and what he now receives under the act placing the office on a salary of $4000 is shown by the figures for the past year.

During the year Sheriff Johnston has turned over to the county treasurer $23,477.69 receipts of his office. Under the old fee bill this would have gone to the sheriff. Out of it he would have had to pay the help in his office, including the salaries of deputies, automobile and other expenses. After he had done this he would have had between twelve and fifteen thousand dollars as his share of the receipts of the office.

Under the salary act he is paid $4000 and the county pays the salaries of the deputies and other expenses. During the past year there were 1125 commitments to jail for which the sheriff received 50 cents each or $562.50. There were 1133 discharges at 50 cents each, or $567.50, and there were 19,398 days board at 50 cents per prisoner, amounting to $9,699, or a total of $10,829.

In feeding the prisoners 18,253 loaves of bread were used during the past year.

Petition To Borrow Money Is Granted

Rev. H. C. Boyle, bishop of the diocese of Pittsburgh and trustee of St. Lucy's Roman Catholic congregation of the seventh ward, presented a petition in court this morning setting forth that the congregation has been erecting a church and rectory, and that it is necessary to borrow $7000 on the property which has an estimated value of $25,000.

Arrangements have been made for a loan of that amount and the petition asked that it be authorized by the court. The petition was granted.

Our only comment on the survival-of-the-fittest theory is that the ones who didn't survive must have been a mess.

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Chief Executive Emerged From Sickly Childhood To Become Model Father

On Anniversary Of Former President's Death Dr. Myers Advises Parents To Try To Win Similar Esteem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Tomorrow marks the twelfth anniversary of the death of Theodore Roosevelt. Curiously enough, we celebrate the day of his death and not his birth. He died on the birthday of Benjamin Franklin, born just 213 years before.

Theodore Roosevelt was a most remarkable parent. So was his father. No other American made such an appeal to boys and girls, young men and women, as did Theodore Roosevelt.

Parents who remember him will surely tell their children about his strenuous life and ideals. Read to the younger ones from "Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to His Children" (Scribner), from "Theodore Roosevelt's Diaries of Boyhood and Youth" (Scribner); Hagedorn's "Boy's Life of Theodore Roosevelt" (Harper's).

Put these books into the hands of the older children. They may enjoy reading to you and you to them. You should find these books in any public library.

We dads are tremendously interested in the early influence of the father of Roosevelt on him, in how this strong, stalwart man became the hero of his sickly, asthmatic lad, and in the way Roosevelt in early boyhood, through his own determination to become strong and strenuous, made his dreams come true.

We read of him at seven and eight. "Time and again his asthma kept him awake half the night, coughing and trying to breathe. In these sessions of pain his father was his most devoted companion, and night after night would walk up and down the room with the boy in his arms, or, in summer, take him driving for miles through the countryside in the dead of night."

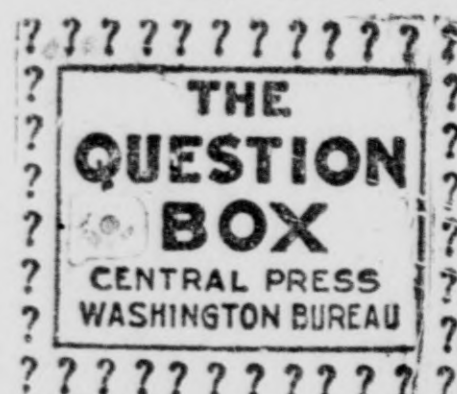

He was a boy of wild imagination, which was stimulated by his early reading and home training. His preparation as a naturalist began early and developed during his boyhood travels with his parents in Europe and Egypt, on through his college days at Harvard.

Theodore was protected from bullies by his younger brother until he finally discovered he would have to learn to protect himself. He decided to take boxing lessons. (Parents of weak, timid children, please take note.) "He determined to build up for himself a clean, valiant fighting soul." By extraordinary effort he became an average boxer, able in an emergency to defend himself, even winning a medal in a series of matches held by his teacher, an ex-prize fighter.

At 15 he boxed and wrestled, and in the gymnasium of his home, in 1873, chimed himself and struggled with the parallel bars patiently day by day.

In his letters to his children we see what a wonderful father he was. How we dads wish we might win from our children a similar esteem he earned from his.

Is there really such a thing as musical sand? If so, what is the explanation for it?

There are many small beaches whose sand has the peculiar property of giving out a distinct musical tone when stepped upon. The musical note appears to depend upon the fact that the grains of sand are of such very uniform size that, as they slip past each other under pressure, the vibrations of the particles respectively re-enforce each other so that sounds which would otherwise be inaudible become distinct and the crunching noise which is heard when the foot presses down upon snow or ordinary sand becomes a clear musical note.

What is the Monroe Doctrine? The Monroe Doctrine is the name applied to the policy of the United States regarding foreign interference in American affairs. It takes its name from President Monroe, who in his message to congress in 1823 first gave it formal announcement. In modern conception it is the policy of the United States to regard any attempt on the part of a European power to gain a foothold in the hemisphere by conquest, or to acquire any new establishment in North or South America by any means, as an act hostile to the United States.

Was a member of the clergy ever president of the United States? The only minister of the gospel to attain the presidency of the United States was James Abram Garfield. Garfield was a clergyman with the Disciples of Christ when he went into politics.

When was tobacco first discovered? Tobacco was first discovered in San Domingo in 1496, afterwards by the Spaniards in Yucatan in 1620. It was introduced in France in 1560 and in England in 1583.

Seaweeds For Human Food Recommended

English Scientist Tells Of Utilization In China And In Japan

Utilization of seaweeds for human food, both as a health measure and to increase the world's food supply is urged by D. Harnston Matheson in a recent communication to the New Health Society, of London, England.

The sea covers, Mr. Matheson recalls, about seven-tenths of the surface of the world. At present, it is "farmed" for human food only to the extent that mankind catches and eats animals like fish and shellfish. But the sea is capable, Mr. Matheson believes, of providing enormous quantities of vegetable food as well.

In China and Japan seaweeds now are gathered and eaten directly or made into soups, jellies and other food products. Scottish fishermen gather a kind of seaweed called "dulse," wash its fronds in fresh water and dry them. During this drying a white, sweet powder gathers on the surface, probably some sugar-like material contained in the plant's juices.

Another Scottish seaweed is gathered, cut into slices and simmered in water until it is tender, making a dish called "suaak." Both these materials are believed by the people who eat them, Mr. Matheson reports, to have remarkable powers of maintaining health, something which modern science agrees to be probable because of the considerable amounts of health-giving iodine present in many seaweeds.

On the small English Island of Grain, Mr. Matheson states, a Mr. G. Levitt has purchased from the British government a concession to gather seaweed and has become the "Seaweed King" of the neighborhood. But these are only small enterprises, Mr. Matheson urges, in comparison with what mankind might do to utilize the neglected vegetable gardens of the sea.

Prisoner Granted Two Weeks Respite To Care For Child

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 5.—Walter Ekis, World war veteran, was granted a two weeks respite from the county jail by Judge James O. Campbell, to allow him to return to his home in Argentine and assist his wife in caring for his eldest child, who is seriously ill with pneumonia. On his plea of guilty to charges of stealing chickens, Ekis was sentenced December 20 the costs, a fine of $100, to make restitution to the value of property taken, and serve a month in the county jail. He has already served fifteen days.

According to counsel for Ekis, there is no one at the Ekis home but Mrs. Ekis, who is unable to do her work and properly care for her sick child.

Pope Ready With Sharp Rebuke On Marital Problems

Forthcoming Encyclical By Pope Pius Will Rebuke Modernistic Trends

TOTAL DISAPPROVAL OF DIVORCE CASES

(International News Service)
ROME, Jan. 5.—Pope Pius XI, in his forthcoming encyclical, will sharply rebuke modernistic trends in marriage and champion vigorously again the first principles of the Catholic church in regards to marital unions and conduct, it was understood here today.

The encyclical will be issued this week, most probably on Thursday.

The Pontiff, it was reported here, will restate in detail the Catholic doctrine of marriage and stress more than ever its total disapproval of divorce.

In touching upon birth control, belief was expressed the Pope would again emphasize the church's traditional stand that by continence only can families be limited within the marital state.

According to a consensus of opinion, the Pontiff here is viewed as offering a direct answer to the declarations made by episcopal bishops at the recent Lambeth conference in London.

Marital Problems
At the same time, the encyclical will deal extensively with various other marital problems of the moment. A prominent part of the document, it is expected, will be devoted to the problem of mixed marriages between Catholics and non-Catholics, so pointedly brought to the attention of the world during negotiations prior to the marriage of Princess Giovanna of Italy and King Boris of Bulgaria.

Both royal parties agreed in writing to observe Catholic provisions in regards to mixed marriages, but later the orthodox Bulgarian clergy sought to convey the impression that the marriage ceremony in Rome was merely a preceding rite, with the real union formed under the orthodox ceremony at Sofia.

The encyclical also will reiterate, according to reports, the age-old doctrine of the church that officiating clergyman must receive written promises from the contracting couples of mixed marriages that children born from the union will be reared in the Catholic faith.

Pupils Found Dull If Air Is Cold

LONDON, Jan. 5.—How warmth affects dexterity of children in school is revealed in a report of the Industrial Health Research board.

It was found that where the cooling power of the air fell to a certain point, children were so cold that their manual dexterity was considerably reduced, especially when they were seated for one and three-quarter hours at a time.

In unheated open-air schools in cold wintry weather the efficiency of the children was only about half as great as that of children in well-warmed schools.

Harry Bell in the workhouse doing a year on conspiracy charge was given another jolt today by the filing of a detainer with the superintendent of the prison in which document the official is ordered by Judge J. A. McLaughry of the county court to hold Bell which just at present is a figure of speech for he has just started his sentence.

His wife Katherine Bell alleges that he had failed to pay the $60 a month support for his minor children which the court ordered at a hearing of 1930 and bond in the sum of $500 was put up by Bell's relatives.

The action involves one of those time riddling affairs which may mean that Bell will never be out of jail again. He can't get out until he pays up and he can't pay. He is back now in payment; and no money, his friends say.

Mechanical Display Attracts Attention

Christmas Season At Home Of Harry Boyd, Crawford Avenue, Has Been Busy One

Christmas tree and accompanying display at the home of Harry G. Boyd, 216 North Crawford avenue, has been one of the most attractive of the various exhibits of the Christmas season this year, because of the fact that it represents an idea carried out to perfection in a mechanical way as well as in conveying the idea of the Christmas season.

It attracted widespread interest and was viewed by hundreds during the holiday season. It takes up about half the living room of the Boyd home and includes the customary Christmas tree, decorated with colored electric lights, tinsel, etc.

Underneath the tree is a well designed house of proportions that permits of completely furnishing it to the minutest detail. In front of the house is a fountain from which water spouts just like those seen in ordinary life.

There is also the customary barnyard, barn, cattle, fowls, etc. To the rear of the barn, is a hill on which there is a revolving beacon light signalling in regulation form to the airplanes that might fly that way. At the side of the barn is a water wheel, actually run by water. There is an electric train with the crossing signals.

And one of the interesting features is the traffic regulating light at the intersection of two highways, which like those in use on the streets here alternately flashes green and red in controlling the traffic in putting on a special mechanical display of this kind each year and this is his best effort of the many years spent in putting on these Christmas displays.

Striking Miners And Police Clash In Ruhr Valley

Strikers Attempt To Free Communist Prisoners But Are Beaten Back

(International News Service)
BERLIN, Jan. 5.—A serious situation with increasing disorders and fatalities prevailed in the Ruhr Valley region today, where striking miners and police clashed repeatedly over Sunday.

Strikers at Linfort tried to storm the police station to free two Communist prisoners, but were finally beaten back after one man had been killed and several wounded. During the battle, the prisoners inside obtained weapons and opened fire on their captors before being subdued.

A strike breaker was killed and three others were wounded when Communists in the Dortmund mine region opened fire on a party of workmen.

Union leaders meanwhile continued to hesitate in calling a general strike, while authorities attributed the disorders and mine shutdowns to Communist agitation.

Trouble began last week when it was announced 250,000 miners would be dismissed January 15 following their refusal to accept a reduction in wages.

House Recommends Appropriating Sum For New Dry Agents

Additional Force Urgently Requested By Colonel Amos W. W. Woodcock

Will Employ 257 Persons Until July 1—New Dry Agents Will Be Added

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A deficiency appropriation of $543,370 for the Justice Department prohibition bureau to make possible addition of 257 persons until July 1, including 130 new agents, was recommended to the House by its appropriations committee today.

The additional force was urgently requested by Prohibition Director Woodcock, who said more money would be sought later to bring the total of new agents to 500. At the same time the committee disclosed the Justice Department's force was cut after Congress transferred part of the prohibition revenue from the Treasury to the Justice Department, leaving the alcohol permit section in the Treasury.

Sharp Criticism Hearing held in connection with the bill also revealed that sharp criticism was directed at the alleged duplication of enforcement work by special and regular agents, a practice vigorously defended by Woodcock.

New employees provided under the appropriation are: three assistant and four deputy administrators, 24 investigators, 12 chiefs of permit section, 130 agents and clerks.

Justifying the increase of personnel, the committee said: "A part of the appropriation recommended is due to the act dividing the bureau of prohibition in the Treasury Department into two separate organizations: bureau of prohibition in the Department of Justice, and the bureau of industrial alcohol in the Treasury Department, each with separate and distinct duties to perform."

"As a result of this and the establishment of two bureaus, a reorganization of organization was necessary. Two directors and two assistant directors are necessary instead of one and the organization all along the line in the department and in the field in each bureau has felt this added cost of readjustment."

Funds Are Needed Director Woodcock told the committee the number of agents under him is less than under the Treasury, because of lack of funds.

Criticism of Woodcock's plan of having special agents work on major conspiracies in territory of regular agents was voiced by Representative Wood (R) of Indiana, committee chairman. He said:

"Some few of them have come to my attention. It seems they simply flush the birds. My judgment is that the quicker you get rid of the special agents and make them investigators or agents, or the sooner you have that special authority taken away, making them ordinary agents, the better service you will have."

The new agents, Woodcock said, would be distributed as follows: New England, 5; New York, 23; third district, including Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, 18; fourth district, including Washington, D. C., 11; fifth district, 10; sixth, 11; seventh, 21; eighth, 10; ninth, 6; tenth, 4; eleventh, 6; twelfth, 5.

The allocation is not final, Woodcock said.

Two To Be Charged With Auto Violation

Injury To Ault Results In Warrants Against Local, Wampum Drivers

Warrants charging reckless operation of a motor vehicle are to be sworn out against John Shuck, Harrisburg street, and John Phenix, R. D. 1, Wampum, according to State Highway Patrolman Richard Baxter. The warrants are the result, Baxter said, of an accident on the Wampum-Ellwood City road which sent John Ault, Wampum, to the Ellwood City hospital.

Baxter reported that Shuck was operating a car toward Ellwood and Phenix failed to stop at the Chewton-Wampum road. John Ault, according to Baxter, was walking on the left side of the road from Ellwood City.

The Phenix car hit the Shuck machine, breaking off a wheel. The car then hit Ault.

Another motorist took him to the Ellwood City hospital. He is considerably bruised and will remain in the hospital for at least a week, it is reported.

Postal Receipts Drop But Little From 1929 Mark

Slight Decline Is Shown For 1930 Business, Office Record Show

New Castle's postoffice receipts for 1930, despite the depression, fell only $11,513.85 short of the 1929 figure, postal officials made public today. Receipts for the past 12 months totaled $170,950.26 as compared to the $182,464.11 yield in 1929. As it does every year, the Christmas quarter ending December 31 set up the record for the year. During that three-month period $49,741.74 was taken in. The January-February-March period of a year ago turned in the second biggest business, amounting to $41,965.79.

Exceeding every other business day in history, the receipts for December 22, the Monday before the holiday, skyrocketed to the $3,123.48 mark, surpassing the best day of 1929 by 25 per cent. However, the Christmas business as a whole did not equal that of a year ago.

Space Problem Here New Castle's need for a new post-office building was given greater emphasis this past year perhaps than ever before, and officials are hoping that Christmas of this year will find a more adequate building ready or at least well on the way to completion.

Temporary rooms have been taken over during the year period for several years in order that parcel post dispatching might not be interfered with. Rooms where the People's store formerly did business were utilized this year.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, yellow skin, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 50c and 60c.

Another Judge Is Desired In Case

Local Judges Said To Have Been Interested In Ellwood
Election Case Dispute

In the case of M. J. Kraus against D. A. Evans, J. A. Evans and M. J. Teeter, growing out of an election contest for burgess of Ellwood City in 1923, and based on an appeal from a decree of court, the plaintiff presented a petition in court this morning asking that another judge be called in to try the case.

The petition stated that it may be necessary to call Judge R. L. Hildebrand as a witness in the case. Judge Hildebrand was also a candidate at the time the controversy over the election of a burgess arose at Ellwood City.

It is further set forth that Judge James A. Chambers at the time the suit was instituted was counsel for D. A. Evans, one of the defendants in the case when it was carried to the supreme court.

A rule on the motion was granted by Judge Chambers and a hearing will be held to determine whether or not it will be necessary to call in another judge.

HARVEY TO MEET
VINCE DUNDEE

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Having pulled a financial and artistic blunder by staging the Jack Renault-Pierre Charles fight last week, Madison Square Garden will attempt to get out of the red by adding a dash of the well-known international flavor to this Friday's card. Len Harvey, crack British middleweight, is meeting Vince Dundee, of Baltimore.

Harvey's American debut is expected to win back the customers who left the Garden moaning after watching Renault and Charles dance the kiss waltz for ten dreary rounds. It is hoped that one of his 350 fights, will instill new life into the middleweight division, now stagnant as the result of Mickey Walker's refusal to defend his crown.

Harvey hopes to wage a successful campaign here that will lead to a bout with Walker. Mickey, however, prefers to mingle with heavyweights and is on the verge of being stripped of his crown by the various boxing associations. It is expected that the New York commission, for one, soon will start an elimination tournament to decide upon a new champion.

Highly Touted
The tall, dark haired Englishman already is being touted as Walker's successor. Last year in England he won a close twenty round decision over Dave Shade, who probably is the best of the American contenders.

While Dundee is not ranked one-two-three in the 160-pound division by most boxing critics, he is plenty good enough to give the Briton a stiff test. In fact, it is even said that the National Boxing Association will declare him the champion if he defeats Harvey.

Harvey is a skillful boxer but also packs a punch, as his record of 200 knockouts will attest. He is a graduate of a rough and ready school, having begun his boxing career as a flyweight at the tender age of thirteen. He was boxing twenty-round bouts at sixteen, an age when American youths are being nursed through three and four round bouts.

Sord Points By Jack Sords

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Cartoonist-Writer

Rabbit Maranville can now take his place along side of Jack Quinn and a few more of those freaks of nature who refuse to weaken with the average player, through a set of false teeth, is telling tales of the deeds he once performed on the diamond. Maranville finds himself at the top of the heap among the National League shortstops.

With 20 years of professional baseball experience behind him the Rabbit seems to have lost little of the skill that made him a great player. Twenty-nine errors in 138 games is all that this veteran made with the Braves last season. He had 343 putouts and 445 assists to his credit and figured in 98 double plays.

Maranville played shortstop for the Braves' "miracle team" of 1914, that won the National League pennant after being in last place on July 4. All of his buddies of those days have long since been inactive and most of them are practically forgotten. Still the Rabbit goes on with no signs of slowing up.

Jacobs Called By Commission

Manager For Herr Max Schmeling Must Appear Before Boxing Commission

SCHMELING-SHARKEY BATTLE IS SOUGHT

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Whether or not the New York boxing commission has feet of clay or is standing on something so solid that even the tears of Joe Jacobs cannot weep it away will be decided tomorrow.

The commission has ordered Jacobs to appear before it to agree that his boy, Max Schmeling, will meet Jack Sharkey of Boston here this summer in defense of his title as world's heavyweight champion. Jacobs is going to plead that Sharkey is "not good enough" and that the man to meet Moxie should be selected in an elimination series.

Jacobs Is Bold
Indeed, some folks say that Jacobs is just bold enough to supplement his original pleadings with a healthy defile of the commissioners and in that event these same folks are willing to wager that the commission will declare the heavyweight title null, void and vacant.

Thereupon Joe and Max are scheduled to depart for Chicago to await the arrival there of the winner of a proposed Young Stribling-Primo Carnera fight, about to be signed for Miami. Schmeling proposes to meet the winner of the Miami clash in Chicago, thus putting his golden diadem in the "recognized" in some states' class.

The really would not bother Schmeling or his manager very much for in Chicago they have no anti-foul ruling and the German could repeat his slide for the title act, which he did for the first time when he won the crown here on a foul from Sharkey last June. In fact some persons hint that Schmeling would travel to a land more distant and strange than Chicago to avoid another encounter with the man from the high seas.

CARIDEO IS GIVEN FINE TESTIMONIAL AT BANQUET HERE

loved with praise for Coach Bridenbaugh and the New Castle high school squad.

Bridenbaugh Speaks
Bridenbaugh was introduced and remarked it was a pleasure to meet Carideo and added he enjoyed Wadell's talk. He asked that he be allowed to add words of praise for Notre Dame. "All students of football admire the generalship of Carideo and he has time and again displayed the brain of a master."

Toastmaster Overend that in football it is necessary to have players and coaches and newspapers. "It is very fortunate that here we have a newspaper that is kindhearted to sport. 'This is necessary' said Overend after which he introduced P. L. Rentz, president of The News. "That is a fair statement," said Rentz. "We don't get any money for it but we support it. 'Do you believe' asked Rentz 'that if my house was burning down on a day when the game is being played that my wife could not get me on the telephone at The News?'"

Gives Key to City
Rentz said that during the past year he had attended three banquets at The Castleton, first for Attorney Margiotti, second when a brilliant jurist was here relative to the Sons of Italy banquet and "tonight we are here to honor a great football player."

"This banquet is most important and enthusiastic. I believe that everything is forgotten on a day of football. Mussolini could not have received a better welcome than Carideo has got. If I were starting out in life again I would be a football player," said Rentz. "Mr. Carideo can create more enthusiasm than any amount of given or purchased liquor. I am very glad we have a newspaper which suits the football fan. And I want now to present to Mr. Carideo, the 'Key to the City of New Castle.' It will get him out of any jail here though I hope he never has to use it."

Rentz presented the key amid voluminous applause as it was well known to all the 200 that his newspaper has stood out prominently in the sport world as being generous to clean athletics and authoritative. Its worth was attested by the Cariego coach and other grid notables.

Gardner Speaks
Ralph Gardner, faculty manager, New Castle high, next spokesman recited how Carideo had spoken to New Castle high football players and said he told the boys that if a young boy had the "A. B. C." he would become a football player. He explained A was for ambition, B for backbone and C for concentration. He had Carideo recite one or two experiences while on the field and then drew from the grid ace that "from my own experience Notre Dame received more bodily contact with Carnegie than Northwestern" after which Carideo remarked: "These were our two hardest games this season."

Duke Beede, coach at Westminster expressed himself as being very happy to be present to help honor Carideo. "No one can do more justice to him. Players like him take the heart out of other teams. He is the most famous of the quarterbacks."

Beede then paid a brilliant compliment to New Castle, telling the notables and diners that "New Castle is one of the 'sportiest' towns in the U. S." and turning to Carideo remarked: "Put that key (presented by Rentz) away where the moth-balls won't eat it. It is the key to a splendid city."

Peter Capitola was then introduced as the next speaker. He faced Carideo, the honor guest seated alongside him. As he spoke he commenced uncovering a desk pen set, a testimonial of esteem from the fans here. As the set was uncovered it was the cynosure of all eyes. It was a beautiful gift. Capitola said:

Presents Gift
"It is a rare privilege and a very pleasant one which the toastmaster has assigned to me. We have listened with profit to the record of, and the esteem shown for our honored guest by the speakers who have preceded me. Frank Carideo, the Chi club and your many friends in this vicinity have commissioned me to tender you this desk-set, as a mark of the high regard and admiration in which they hold you."

"This token of respect you will note is emblematic of two phases of your life. The figure of the uniformed football player is emblematic of those days which too soon will be numbered as your yesterdays. It will remind you of the pleasant days which you spent on the campus. It will remind you of the time served under that outstanding figure of the World of Sports, Knute Rockne."

"It will remind you of boyhood friends, together with whom you became the most famous football team of all time, bringing honor and success to the colors of your Alma Mater, the grand old school of Notre Dame, which honors you shared gloriously with the team, the faculty, and the student body."

"These pens are emblematic of the second phase of your life which is about to begin. 'The pen is mightier than the sword', we hope that with these pens you will make your mark in your chosen field of endeavor, whatever it may be. Your friends here in New Castle will watch with great satisfaction the progress which you will make on the battlefields of life."

"We wish for your health, happiness, prosperity, success, and the greatest of all treasures, man can have, a host of real, true, and sincere friends. Good Luck and God-speed."

Carideo Speaks
The honored guest arose. He smiled happily. There was no question and could be none in his mind but that he was present in an assembly which had worshipped his every move on the battlefield of football, where as speakers had said his character as a leader and a man had stood out prominently.

"My friends, citizens of New Castle," said Carideo "after listing to these beautiful words here tonight, right now I don't know if I am an adopted Irishman or an Italian." In speaking of newspapers, the gentleman was right in stating they are necessary to football.

"I want to praise Mr. Rentz for keeping sports alive here and I want to take this opportunity to offer my thanks for this token of esteem which has been presented me. I'll keep it and look back to this wonderful time and the affair of tonight."

"I'll never forget it. I'll use it to write down football players." He then thanked Mr. Rentz and Ed Fritz, Sports Editor of The News for cooperation during the day when reports came from the coast, erroneously stating, he had been engaged to marry."

He passed over the incident lightly believing probably that a denial in the banquet room would lend dignity to the "publicity stunt." Carideo continued saying: "I enjoyed this evening and I again want to thank you for the hearty welcome from the people of New Castle and I want to keep them all as my friends."

During the banquet several vocal and instrumental numbers were rendered and at 10:15 p. m. the banquet guests enjoyed dancing. Carideo spent the night at The Castleton. Mayor Gillespie wished him well and success in life when he accompanied him to the railroad station, Sunday.

Carideo left for his home at Mount Vernon and will later go to New York where Tuesday night he will be the guest of honor at the Astor house.

Tonight's game will be a match between Coaches Meanwell and Craig Ruby, his old captain at Missouri.

KEEPING It Hot

Stove League Gossip

Rogers Hornsby, though he may dislike such a phrase, is a relic of a passing type. He is the last of the major league playing managers.

In the early days of the last decade playing managers were extremely popular. They flourished particularly in the west.

While the effete east continued the ancient regime of the Mack-McGraw-Robinson-Huggins dynasty, Detroit, Cleveland, the two Chicago clubs and the two St. Louis clubs along with Washington were boasting of playing managers.

At one time, with George Sisler piloting the Browns, Ty Cobb the Tigers, Tris Speaker the Indians, Bucky Harris, the Senators, Ray Schalk and, then, Eddie Collins, the White Sox it appeared as though eventually the playing manager might become the rule rather than the exception.

However, none of these clubs now have playing managers. Hornsby, who has held forth in the same capacity of the Braves and the Cardinals, now stands alone as playing manager for the Chicago Cubs.

Though the bench manager is once more supreme in the majors the playing manager has done his share to make baseball history.

Such luminaries as Fielder Jones, of the White Sox, Frank Chance of the Cubs, and Hughie Jennings of the Tigers were playing managers who gave baseball spectacular champions.

Little Change In Stock Market Prices Today

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Profit taking and professional selling blocked the progress of the rally in most sections of the market at the beginning of the new week, but new advances in the Public Utility and Specialty stocks in the second hour toned up the whole list. The Automobile stocks fell back under the weight of professional selling, while the Independent Oils were boosted on the strength of the firming up of the retail gasoline markets.

Will Seek To Bring Men Here From Youngstown

(Special To The News)
MERCER, Pa., Jan. 5.—Corporal Marcus White, officer in charge of the state police here, under whose supervision the recent hold-ups at New Wilmington have been cleared up, stated today that John Senk and Sam Lanioli, under arrest in Youngstown in connection with the case, and identified as having participated in the hold-ups, are fighting extradition to Pennsylvania, having refused to come to Pennsylvania of their own accord.

They are being held at Youngstown, O., under $7,500 bail each by order of Judge Moore of Mahoning county pending an effort by Lawrence county officials to secure extradition papers.

While they are unable to secure bail, they are being defended by two good lawyers, who have been retained with funds which Corporal White believes has been furnished by a slush fund raised in Youngstown, and will make a determined effort to keep from coming to this state for trial.

Drought Relief Is Demanded By 300

(International News Service)
ENGLAND, Ark., Jan. 5.—Relief workers today went about the task of providing food for 300 drought-impaired farmers who appeared before the County Relief Committee Saturday and demanded food for their starving families.

Headquarters here experienced a very quiet day yesterday following the demonstration of Saturday afternoon when the food seekers threatened to take supplies off the shop shelves.

After supplying the men with $1-500 worth of supplies Red Cross officials promised that no one would go hungry. Unless more funds are provided by the time the emergency funds are exhausted those in charge feared that other demonstrations might follow.

Suicides Lead Causes Of Death In Army Circles

Tuberculosis, Airplanes And Balloons Also Extract Heavy Toll Of Death

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Suicides led the causes for deaths in the Army last year, it was disclosed during the hearings of the House Appropriations Committee consideration of the War Department appropriation bill.

The death rate from suicides was 39 per 1,000. Tuberculosis and airplane and balloon accidents each took a toll of 37 lives in every 1,000 men.

Other causes high in the mortality list were pneumonia, automobile accidents, drownings, homicide, cancer, appendicitis and spinal meningitis.

The death rate in the Army declined 92.90 since the period prior to the Mexican war, according to Maj. Gen. Merritt W. Ireland, surgeon general.

The death rate from all causes in the Army since the World War has only been 2.19 in every thousand, Ireland said.

Thousands 'O Kids Are In School Room Today

It wasn't much of a job to get them to school this morning. Just a matter of several thousand alarm clocks and a couple score school bells.

They jumped out of bed, put on their woollens, corduroys or laces, gathered the rather dusty readers, arithmetic books and notebooks, put a strap around them, grabbed a hat from the buffet and were off.

Very simple.

But to get their minds on their studies—not so simple! There were too many important things in the minds of the thousands of youngsters this morning—too many things that demanded immediate attention.

For instance, what did the girl in front get for Christmas? And what did the kid in the seat diagonal from her get? Does Alfred still get more when you shoot a paper wad at him and will Sally still get a kick out of passing notes in geography class?

However teachers are quite worldly-wise and they know that tomorrow the children will be able to focus their thoughts on the problems of division and addition and will be ready to tackle that awful ninth multiplication table. They will be able to spell "sure" without an "h" and "much" without an "i". They will be able to tell "latitude" from "longitude" and the difference between an island and a peninsula.

Today is just a prologue—tomorrow school really starts. Thence on until Easter comes along, then another breathing spell.

Issues Warning On War Vets Legislation

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—With a warning from Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines to use care in legislating for world war veterans, the house appropriation committee today included a deficiency appropriation of $36,250,000 for world war veterans and $19,500,000 for pensions in the first deficiency bill, reported today.

The general's warning was made in hearings in which he showed the tremendous increase in cost of caring for disabled world war veterans and meeting pensions allotments for previous wars.

Total expenditures under the veterans bureau to world war veterans and dependents for all purposes, to Oct. 31, 1930, totals $6,377,904,384.64, Hines testified.

The disability pension law passed by congress last session, with other liberalization features and the economic situation, has resulted in a great increase in world war veterans cost, he declared. Hines said:

"There is no better illustration of how carefully we will have to proceed in legislating, in dealing with the numbers of men who were in the world war."

Rivers-Harbors Cost Enormous

Would Take $507,000,000 To Complete Rivers And Harbors Program

CHANNEL WORK IS BEING PUSHED

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Cost of completing the present rivers and harbor program of congress, including the upper Mississippi, upper Missouri and Tennessee rivers, only partly authorized, is $507,000,000, according to Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers.

His estimate was laid before the House Appropriations committee, which today recommended $60,000,000 for work next year. This is in addition to $22,500,000 recently voted in the emergency public work program.

Brown told the committee that work is being pushed on the Missouri river 6-foot channel between Kansas City and St. Louis. With two high water seasons, he said, the object would be accomplished.

Allocation of rivers and harbors fund is not provided in the War department bill, but already has been made by the department. It includes: $1,000,000 on Monongahela; $936,500 on Allegheny; $900,000 on Kanawha, W. Va.

State Errs In Sending Tags

Mistakes Have Been Found In Several Instances By Local Residents

Several instances have been brought to the attention of the New Castle Motor Club by their members where the state has made an error in sending out 1931 automobile license tags.

Applicants for tags have found that the numerals and letters on the tags differ from those on the registration card. That is, the letter "e" found transposed, and of course making the tag number entirely different.

Local automobile owners are urged by Secretary Hanlon of the auto club to see that the number on the tag corresponds with the number on the registration card, and if it does not, to notify the state bureau at once.

The New Castle Motor Club has taken care of several of these cases for local motorists through their service bureau at Harrisburg, where quicker action is secured through their affiliation with the Pennsylvania Motor Federation.

Hundreds Apply For Post As Nurse In Arctic Village

Life Of Hardships In Frigid North Had Appeal For Many

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 5.—Suppose there were a chance for a job, it would be a strange job—a job in a tiny village of huts, 250 miles from the nearest city, a village desolate and snowbound, a village held for six months of the year in the dark enchantment of Arctic night.

There would be difficult conditions, too, tied up with this job. There would be unremitting work for doing strange, half savage people, with not the best of facilities for doing that work. And there would be a definite, binding promise that the holder of the job would have to make—the promise not to marry for at least three years.

It doesn't sound overattractive. And yet, a short time ago, when the missionary department of the Protestant Episcopal church let it be known through the medium of the daily papers that it had such a job at its disposal—one single job, mind you—it was fairly swamped with applicants.

Applications Poured In
The work to be done was that of nurse in Hudson Stuck Memorial hospital, Fort Yukon, Alaska. When the Episcopal church announced the opening it made no secret of the inaccessibility of the post. The articles announcing the job described a small, primitive settlement, 10 miles north of the Arctic Circle. They told of a strange world, glamorous and difficult, of the little hospital with its accommodations for 30 patients, of its beneficiaries who are Indians, Eskimos, gold-seekers, hunters, trappers, traders, boatmen—all the rag-tag picturesque crew that drifts to this far twilight pale, just at the border between civilization and savagery.

Emphasis was put upon long, hard hours, on the difficulty of the work on the fact that one nurse has broken down and that two others are suffering from overwork and in need of relief. And in spite of these facts, despite the emphasis of the no-marriage-for-three-years promise, the missionary department of the Church Missions House, at 261

4th avenue, had, within a day or two after the announcement, more than 50 personal cards, as many more telephone calls, almost a hundred letters, and long-distance calls from as far away as Chicago.

All of those applicants for this one little job among Eskimos and Indians and hunters and trappers have been disappointed—all, that is, from this section of the country. Final choice was made of Miss Clara H. Dickinson, a member of Trinity Episcopal church, Hoquiam, State of Washington. She was within striking distance of Alaska and she sailed immediately upon receiving news of her appointment.

Name Local Committee For Aid To Porto Ricans

A local committee has been formed in Lawrence county of the Porto Rico Child Feeding committee, consisting of the following persons:

Chairman, C. H. Young, member public service commission, New Castle; Fred L. Rentz, publisher, "New Castle News", New Castle; C. C. Green, superintendent of schools, New Castle; Rev. C. J. Williamson, United Presbyterian, 411 Sheridan avenue, New Castle; Rev. G. S. Bennett, Christian church, 322 Park avenue, New Castle; Rev. W. E. McClure, Presbyterian, 123 East Sheridan avenue, New Castle; E. A. P. Christley, postmaster, Ellwood City.

The committee is asking for the generous cooperation of all those interested in the well-being of little children in furthering the work of feeding the undernourished, stunted, and often diseased school children of Porto Rico—thousands of whom have been subsisting on a single meal a day and are slowly starving.

President Hoover recently had a survey made under the personal direction of Dr. J. S. Crumrine of the American Health association which showed that 201,000 children in this island under the American flag were suffering from malnutrition.

While the devastating hurricane of 1923, which caused great distress among the people and did property damage of a hundred million dollars, focussed the attention of the United States upon the sad condition of the children and funds were raised to meet the emergency, it soon became apparent that malnutrition was of long standing and that there must be insistence on adequate feeding of the school children if a constructive health program were to be carried out on the island and the menacing amount of disease reduced.

Knife And Cord Save Life Of Hunting Dog

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 5.—A hunting knife and a piece of ordinary cotton cord were used by L. P. Young in sewing together two long gashes in the right hip of his Chesapeake dog, Don.

Young took Don on a hunting trip with him. While riding in a boat Don became excited, lost his footing and fell into the water directly in the path of the whirling paddles of the gasoline motor. The two long gashes which the paddles inflicted were so deep that Young feared the dog might die from loss of blood before he could get him to a veterinarian. Young performed the operation with the aid of his knife and the cord. Don will recover.

GENEVA, N. Y., Jan. 5.—How to pop popcorn and pop it right has been described by F. C. Stewart, botanist at the New York state experiment station here.

OLD WOOD SEEN AS LINK TO ASIA

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—The oldest deposit of preserved wood in the world its age estimated between 15 and 20 million years, has been discovered by government engineers at Fort McMurray in northern Alberta. S. C. Ellis, an engineer in the employ of the Federal Department of Mines made the find, which geologists consider one of the most important scientific discoveries in recent years.

Deep in the Fort McMurray mine, the wood has lain sealed tight from the devastating effects of air. When uncovered, it was found in perfect preservation. The growth rings could be counted inside the trunks, the wood could be whittled with an ordinary jack-knife; even tiny insects which feed on leaves and tender shoots of the growing trees were preserved in the airtight chamber. The leaves were unearthed in fair condition.

Dr. I. W. Bailey of Harvard university has established that at least one of the preserved trees is of a type that grows in Japan. Geologists look upon this as evidence that North America and Asia at one time were parts of one huge continent.

Friends here have received word that Rev. F. E. Reese, of Aberdeen, S. Dakota, pastor of the Presbyterian church at that place has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church at Spokane, Washington. He expects to accept the call, the church being the largest Presbyterian congregation in that city according to information received here.

Some years ago, Rev. Reese was pastor of the Central Presbyterian on leaves and tender shoots of the congregation in this city.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, (adv.)
